Welcome Message

Dear Colleagues and distinguished guests,

The Department of Surgery, Faculty of Medicine for Girls Al-Azhar University always has the honor to invite you to the Annual Conference. This year, research in surgery 2015 will concentrate on research in surgery and its impact on practice in Egypt.

We all know the importance of research in our career as it leads every body to gain intellectual stimulation, express opinion, share ideas, exchange experience.

Research in surgery 2015 will be a great opportunity to discuss problems facing research in Egypt and possible solutions concentrating on how to improve basic writing skills.

As usual we have this year a remarkable gathering of national and international professors, where we are able to exchange expert knowledge.

The conference's activities will be addressed with a memorial lecture on the name of one of our professors, and arts of life lecture which will be on Egyptology.

We're certain all of our guests will enjoy the activities of the conference, fascinating nature and history of Egypt.

We hope everyone leaves with an abundance of memories and life lasting experiences.

We always rely on your sincerest of contributions towards our conferences.

Thank you.

Prof. Atef Allam

AL-AZHAR MOSQUE AND UNIVERSITY

Al-Azhar University in Cairo is one of the oldest operating universities in the world. The Islamic university is connected to the beautiful and historic Al-Azhar Mosque. The mosque and university are named in honor of Fatima Az-Zahraa, the daughter of Prophet Muhammad, from whom the Fatimid Dynasty claimed descent.

The mosque was built in two years beginning in 971 AD. The school of theology (madrasa) connected with it was founded in 988 as an Ismaili Shia school, but it later became a Sunni school, which it remains to this day. It claims to be the oldest Islamic university in the world.

The core academic life of Al-Azhar has remained much the same for over a millenium: its students study the Qur'an and Islamic law in detail, along with logic, grammar, rhetoric, and how to calculate the lunar phases of the moon. Most of this learning is done by listening in halqa at the feet of a sheikh and rote memorization. As students advance, they may engage in Socratic dialogue with their teachers or instruct their juniors.

Al-Azhar is considered by most Sunni Muslims to be the most prestigious school of Islamic law, and its scholars are seen as the highest scholars in the Muslim world. Its stated objectives remain the propagation of Islamic culture and the Arabic language and propagation of the proper Islamic regulation and law which is anti-violence ideologies. In 1961 additional non-religious subjects were added to its curriculum e.g. Medicine and Engineering.

To that end, it maintains a committee of ulemas to judge on individual Islamic questions, a printing establishment for printing the Qur'an, and trains preachers trained in da'wa and the propagation of religious publicity. Al-Azhar is run by a Supreme Council that establishes general policy, headed by a Grand Imam, styled "Sheikh Al-Azhar."

Since 1929 Al-Azhar has published a magazine (now monthly) whose stated purpose is to promulgate religious rules, subjects related to the propagating of Islamic literature, and basic jurisprudence (sharia), including sections on history, biographies, translated texts and news concerning the Muslim world.

The current Imam of Al-Azhar has declared that the perpetrators of the 9/11 attacks and suicide bombers are heretics who are not following the true path of Islam. In a recent conference in Indonesia, he asked all "true believers" to deny speakers of violently heretical Islam places to speak in the mosque, thus preventing the spread of violent ideologies.
